

Steroid and Thyroid Hormones

- Steroid hormones and thyroid hormone diffuse easily into their target cells
- Once inside, they bind and activate a specific intracellular receptor
- The hormone-receptor complex travels to the nucleus and binds a DNA-associated receptor protein
- This interaction prompts DNA transcription to produce mRNA
- The mRNA is translated into proteins, which bring about a cellular effect